

UNIT–2: Advertising and Advertising Media

1. Explain the Importance and Functions of Advertising.

Introduction

Advertising is a paid, non-personal form of communication used by businesses to inform, persuade, and remind customers about their products or services. It is one of the most important promotional tools because it creates awareness, builds brand image, increases sales, and helps businesses compete in the market. Through different media such as television, newspapers, radio, websites, and social media, advertising reaches a large number of customers.

Importance of Advertising

1. Creates Product Awareness

Advertising informs customers about new products and services available in the market. It explains their features, uses, benefits, and availability.

Example: Samsung advertises its latest smartphones through television and YouTube.

2. Increases Sales

Advertising encourages customers to purchase products by highlighting their quality, benefits, and special offers, leading to higher sales and profits.

3. Builds Brand Image

Regular advertising creates a positive image of the company and helps customers remember the brand for a long time.

Example: Amul advertisements have built a strong and trusted brand image over many years.

4. Helps Face Competition

Advertising enables companies to differentiate their products from competitors by highlighting unique features and advantages.

Example: Coca-Cola and Pepsi continuously advertise to compete for market share.

5. Educates Customers

Advertising provides information about:

- Product features
- Price
- Quality
- Safety
- Usage
- Availability

This helps customers make informed buying decisions.

6. Expands the Market

Advertising reaches customers in different cities, states, and countries, helping businesses enter new markets.

7. Supports Business Growth

Increased customer awareness and higher sales contribute to business expansion, profitability, and long-term success.

Functions of Advertising

1. Informing Function

Advertising provides information about new products, prices, features, availability, and promotional offers.

2. Persuading Function

It persuades customers to choose one brand over competing brands by emphasizing product benefits and value.

3. Reminding Function

Advertising reminds existing customers about the product, encouraging repeat purchases and maintaining customer loyalty.

4. Creating Demand

Advertising creates interest in products and stimulates customer demand, especially for new products.

5. Building Goodwill

Consistent and honest advertising improves the company's reputation and strengthens customer trust.

6. Supporting Sales

Advertising creates awareness before customers visit stores, making the work of salespeople easier and increasing the chances of successful sales.

Conclusion

Advertising is an essential component of modern marketing. It helps businesses create awareness, educate customers, increase demand, build a strong brand image, and support sales efforts. By performing these functions, advertising contributes significantly to the growth, competitiveness, and long-term success of an organization.

. Explain the AIDA Model.

Introduction

The AIDA Model is one of the most popular advertising and marketing communication models. It explains the stages a customer goes through before purchasing a product or service. Advertisers use this model to create effective advertisements that attract customers and influence their buying decisions.

AIDA stands for:

- A – Attention
- I – Interest
- D – Desire
- A – Action

The model was developed to show how advertising gradually converts a potential customer into a buyer.

AIDA Model Diagram

(Draw this simple diagram in the exam—it takes only 20 seconds and can improve presentation.)

Stages of the AIDA Model

1. Attention

The first objective of an advertisement is to grab the customer's attention.

Companies use:

- Attractive headlines
- Bright colours
- Celebrity endorsements
- Eye-catching images
- Videos
- Creative slogans

Without attracting attention, customers may ignore the advertisement.

Example: A Virat Kohli advertisement for Puma immediately grabs people's attention.

2. Interest

Once attention is gained, the advertisement should create interest by explaining the product's features, benefits, and usefulness.

Customers begin to learn more about the product and understand how it can benefit them.

Example: A smartphone advertisement highlights its camera quality, battery life, and performance.

3. Desire

At this stage, the advertisement creates a strong desire to own or use the product by showing how it satisfies customer needs or solves problems.

Companies often use:

- Customer testimonials
- Emotional appeals
- Demonstrations
- Special offers

to increase the customer's desire.

Example: An advertisement shows how an air conditioner provides comfort during hot summer days.

4. Action

The final stage is to encourage customers to take action.

The advertisement motivates customers to:

- Buy the product
- Visit the website
- Contact the company
- Download an app
- Register for a service

Example: "Buy Now," "Order Today," "Limited-Time Offer," or "Shop Now."

Advantages of the AIDA Model

1. Easy to Understand

The model clearly explains the customer buying process from awareness to purchase.

2. Improves Advertising Effectiveness

Businesses can design advertisements that guide customers through each stage of the buying process.

3. Increases Sales

By creating attention, interest, desire, and action, the model increases the chances of customer purchases.

4. Helps in Marketing Planning

The AIDA Model helps marketers develop effective promotional and advertising strategies.

5. Improves Customer Communication

It helps companies communicate the right message at the right stage of the customer's decision-making process.

Conclusion

The AIDA Model is a simple and effective advertising model that explains how customers move from Attention to Interest, then Desire, and finally Action. It helps businesses create effective advertisements, improve customer engagement, increase sales, and achieve better marketing results.

3. Discuss the DAGMAR Approach.

Introduction

DAGMAR stands for Defining Advertising Goals for Measured Advertising Results. It was developed by Russell H. Colley in 1961.

The DAGMAR approach states that advertising should have clear, specific, and measurable objectives. The success of an advertising campaign should be evaluated based on how effectively it communicates with customers and influences their buying behaviour.

Full Form of DAGMAR

D – Defining

A – Advertising

G – Goals

F – For

M – Measured

A – Advertising

R – Results

Stages of the DAGMAR Approach

Diagram

Awareness

Comprehension

Conviction

Action

(Draw this simple diagram in the exam.)

1. Awareness

The first objective of advertising is to make customers aware of the product or service.

Customers should know:

- Product name
- Brand name
- Availability

Without awareness, customers cannot purchase the product.

Example: A newly launched soft drink is advertised on TV so that people know it exists.

2. Comprehension

After creating awareness, the advertisement should help customers understand the product.

It explains:

- Features
- Benefits
- Price
- Quality
- Uses

Customers gain complete knowledge about the product.

Example: An advertisement explains that a washing machine saves water and electricity.

3. Conviction

At this stage, customers develop confidence and trust in the product.

The advertisement convinces customers that the product is better than competing brands and worth purchasing.

Companies may use:

- Customer testimonials
- Product demonstrations
- Expert recommendations
- Positive reviews

Example: A toothpaste advertisement showing dentists recommending the product.

4. Action

The final stage encourages customers to take the desired action.

The action may include:

- Purchasing the product
- Visiting the website
- Registering for a service
- Contacting the company

Example: "Buy Now", "Order Today", or "Limited-Time Offer".

Advantages of the DAGMAR Approach

1. Clear Advertising Objectives

It helps businesses define specific and measurable advertising goals.

2. Easy Performance Measurement

Companies can compare actual campaign results with planned objectives.

3. Better Advertising Planning

The approach helps marketers design more effective advertising campaigns.

4. Improves Communication

It ensures that advertisements deliver the right message to the target audience.

5. Better Decision Making

Businesses can identify successful campaigns and improve future advertising strategies.

Limitations of the DAGMAR Approach

(Write these only if you have time—they can earn extra marks.)

- Measuring customer attitudes and awareness may be difficult.
 - Buying decisions are influenced by many factors besides advertising.
 - Measuring advertising results can take time.
 - Not all advertising effects can be measured accurately.
-

Conclusion

The DAGMAR Approach is an effective advertising planning model that focuses on setting clear, measurable advertising objectives. It guides customers through the stages of Awareness, Comprehension, Conviction, and Action, making advertising campaigns more effective and easier to evaluate. It helps businesses improve communication, measure performance, and achieve better marketing results.

4. What are the Types of Advertising Media? Explain the Merits and Demerits of Each Media.

Introduction

Advertising media are the various communication channels used by businesses to deliver promotional messages to customers. The selection of the right advertising media depends on factors such as the target audience, budget, nature of the product, and advertising objectives. An appropriate choice of media helps businesses communicate effectively and achieve better marketing results.

Types of Advertising Media

1. Print Media (Newspapers and Magazines)

Meaning

Print media includes advertisements published in newspapers, magazines, brochures, journals, and pamphlets. It is one of the oldest forms of advertising.

Merits

- Low advertising cost compared to television.
- Suitable for local and regional advertising.
- Customers can read advertisements at their convenience.
- Provides detailed product information.
- Easy to preserve and refer to later.

Demerits

- Limited audience compared to digital media.
 - Newspapers have a very short life.
 - No audio or visual effects.
 - Print quality may vary.
-

2. Broadcast Media (Television and Radio)

Meaning

Broadcast media uses television and radio to communicate advertising messages to a large audience.

Merits

- Reaches a large number of people.
- Television combines sound, visuals, and motion, making advertisements attractive.
- Creates a strong impact on customers.
- Suitable for mass marketing.

Demerits

- High advertising cost.
 - Limited advertisement duration.
 - Many viewers skip or ignore advertisements.
 - Television production costs are expensive.
-

3. Outdoor Media (Hoardings, Posters, Banners)

Meaning

Outdoor media includes billboards, hoardings, posters, banners, transit advertisements, and digital displays placed in public locations.

Merits

- Visible to a large number of people.
- Excellent for local advertising.
- Repeated exposure improves brand recall.
- Suitable for creating awareness.

Demerits

- Limited space for information.

- Weather conditions may damage posters and banners.
 - People view advertisements only for a short time.
 - Difficult to explain complex products.
-

4. Digital Media (Internet and Social Media)

Meaning

Digital media includes advertising through the internet, websites, search engines, social media platforms, mobile applications, and online videos.

Merits

- Worldwide reach.
- Cost-effective compared to traditional media.
- Targets specific customer groups.
- Results can be measured easily.
- Supports two-way communication with customers.

Demerits

- Requires internet access.
 - High competition among online advertisements.
 - Customers may ignore or block ads.
 - Privacy and security concerns.
-

5. Direct Media (Email, SMS, Telephone)

Meaning

Direct media involves direct communication with customers through emails, SMS, telephone calls, WhatsApp, and direct mail.

Merits

- Personal communication.
- Quick customer response.
- Cost-effective.
- Easy to send personalized messages.
- Builds strong customer relationships.

Demerits

- Customers may ignore or delete messages.
 - Privacy concerns.
 - Effectiveness depends on accurate customer data.
 - Limited reach if the customer database is outdated.
-

Comparison of Advertising Media

Media Type	Examples	Major Merit	Major Demerit
Print Media	Newspapers, Magazines	Low cost and detailed information	Short life and limited reach
Broadcast Media	Television, Radio	Wide audience and strong impact	High cost
Outdoor Media	Hoardings, Posters, Banners	High visibility	Limited information
Digital Media	Internet, Social Media	Worldwide reach and target marketing	High competition
Direct Media	Email, SMS, Telephone	Personal communication	Privacy concerns

Conclusion

Different advertising media have their own advantages and disadvantages. Businesses should select the most appropriate media based on their target audience, advertising budget, product type, and marketing objectives. Using the right combination of media helps organizations improve communication, increase customer reach, and achieve better marketing success.

5. Discuss about:

(a) Advertising Objectives

(b) Advertising Budget

Introduction

Advertising is an important promotional activity that helps businesses communicate with customers and achieve marketing goals. For an advertising campaign to be successful, a company must have clear advertising objectives and a well-planned advertising budget. The objectives define what the company wants to achieve, while the budget determines how much money will be spent on advertising activities.

(A) Advertising Objectives

Meaning

Advertising Objectives are the specific goals that a company wants to achieve through its advertising campaigns. These objectives guide the planning, execution, and evaluation of advertising activities.

Objectives of Advertising

1. Create Product Awareness

Advertising introduces new products and services to customers and makes them aware of their availability.

2. Increase Sales

Advertisements encourage customers to purchase products, leading to higher sales and profits.

3. Build Brand Image

Regular advertising creates a positive image of the company and improves brand recognition.

Example: Apple advertises innovation and quality, creating a strong premium brand image.

4. Inform Customers

Advertising provides information about:

- Product features
- Price
- Quality
- Offers
- Availability

This helps customers make informed buying decisions.

5. Face Competition

Advertising helps companies compete with rival brands by highlighting their unique features and advantages.

6. Maintain Customer Loyalty

Regular advertisements remind existing customers about the brand and encourage repeat purchases.

(B) Advertising Budget

Meaning

An Advertising Budget is the amount of money allocated by a company for advertising activities during a specific period, such as a month or a year.

It includes expenses for:

- Television advertisements
 - Newspaper advertisements
 - Digital advertising
 - Social media campaigns
 - Outdoor advertising
 - Radio advertisements
-

Importance of Advertising Budget

1. Controls Advertising Expenses

A budget helps companies spend money wisely and avoid unnecessary advertising costs.

2. Ensures Proper Planning

It enables businesses to plan advertising campaigns effectively and complete them on schedule.

3. Better Resource Allocation

The budget helps distribute funds among different advertising media according to business needs.

4. Measures Advertising Performance

Companies can compare advertising expenditure with campaign results such as sales, customer responses, and Return on Investment (ROI).

5. Supports Business Objectives

A well-planned budget ensures that advertising activities are aligned with the company's marketing goals.

Factors Affecting Advertising Budget (Extra Point for Higher Marks)

- Nature of the product
 - Target audience
 - Competition
 - Size of the business
 - Advertising objectives
 - Available financial resources
-

Conclusion

Advertising objectives provide direction for promotional activities by defining what the company wants to achieve, while the advertising budget ensures proper financial planning and efficient use of resources. Together, they help businesses create effective advertising campaigns, increase sales, build strong brands, and achieve long-term marketing success.

6. What are the Methods and Regulations of Advertising in India?

Introduction

Advertising is an important promotional tool used by businesses to inform, persuade, and remind customers about their products and services. Companies use different methods of advertising to reach their target audience. In India, advertising is regulated by various laws and organizations to ensure that advertisements are truthful, ethical, legal, and do not mislead consumers.

Methods of Advertising

1. Print Advertising

Print advertising includes advertisements published in:

- Newspapers
- Magazines
- Brochures
- Pamphlets
- Journals

It is suitable for providing detailed information and reaching local or regional audiences.

Example: Full-page advertisement in The Hindu newspaper.

2. Broadcast Advertising

Broadcast advertising uses:

- Television
- Radio

It reaches a large audience through sound and visual effects.

Example: Television commercials during cricket matches.

3. Outdoor Advertising

Outdoor advertising includes:

- Hoardings
- Billboards
- Posters
- Banners
- Digital display boards

It is mainly used to create brand awareness in public places.

Example: Billboard advertisements on highways.

4. Digital Advertising

Digital advertising uses:

- Websites
- Social media (Instagram, Facebook)
- YouTube
- Search engines (Google)
- Mobile applications

It allows businesses to target specific customers and measure campaign performance.

Example: Sponsored advertisements on Instagram.

5. Direct Advertising

Direct advertising communicates personally with customers through:

- Email
- SMS
- Telephone calls
- WhatsApp
- Direct mail

It aims to generate immediate responses and build customer relationships.

Regulation of Advertising in India

Advertising in India is regulated to protect consumers from false, misleading, or harmful advertisements.

1. Advertising Standards Council of India (ASCI)

ASCI is a self-regulatory organization that promotes responsible advertising.

Functions

- Ensures advertisements are truthful.
 - Prevents misleading advertisements.
 - Promotes ethical advertising practices.
 - Protects consumer interests.
-

2. Consumer Protection Act, 2019

This Act protects consumers against:

- False advertisements
- Misleading claims
- Unfair trade practices

Companies publishing misleading advertisements may face legal action and penalties.

3. Cable Television Networks Rules

These rules regulate advertisements shown on television channels.

They prohibit advertisements that:

- Mislead consumers
- Promote harmful products illegally
- Violate public morality or decency

4. Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI)

FSSAI regulates advertisements related to food products.

It ensures that advertisements:

- Do not make false health claims.
- Provide accurate information about food products.
- Protect consumer health.

5. Drugs and Magic Remedies (Objectionable Advertisements) Act

This Act prohibits advertisements that:

- Claim magical cures.
- Make false medical claims.
- Mislead people regarding medicines and treatments.

Its objective is to protect public health from deceptive advertisements.

Importance of Advertising Regulations (Extra Point for Higher Marks)

- Protects consumer rights.
- Prevents misleading advertisements.
- Promotes ethical advertising.
- Builds customer trust.
- Encourages fair competition among businesses.

Conclusion

Advertising methods help businesses communicate effectively with customers through various media such as print, broadcast, outdoor, digital, and direct advertising. At the same time, advertising regulations in India ensure that advertisements are truthful, ethical, and socially responsible, thereby protecting consumer interests and promoting fair business practices.

2. Explain the Types of Advertising.

Introduction

Advertising is a paid form of communication used by businesses to inform, persuade, and remind customers about products, services, or ideas. Depending on the purpose, advertising is classified into different types. Each type helps businesses achieve specific marketing objectives.

Types of Advertising

1. Product Advertising

Meaning

Product advertising focuses on promoting a specific product or service to increase sales and customer awareness.

Objectives

- Create product awareness.
- Increase sales.
- Highlight product features and benefits.
- Encourage customers to purchase.

Example: A Samsung advertisement promoting its latest Galaxy smartphone.

2. Institutional Advertising

Meaning

Institutional advertising promotes the company or organization rather than a specific product. Its purpose is to build goodwill and improve the company's reputation.

Objectives

- Build a positive company image.
- Increase public trust.
- Improve corporate reputation.
- Strengthen customer confidence.

Example: Tata Group advertisements highlighting its social responsibility and values.

3. Informative Advertising

Meaning

Informative advertising provides customers with detailed information about a product or service.

Objectives

- Introduce new products.
- Explain product features and benefits.
- Provide price and usage information.
- Educate customers.

Example: A new laptop advertisement explaining processor, RAM, battery life, and price.

4. Persuasive Advertising

Meaning

Persuasive advertising aims to convince customers to choose one brand over competing brands.

Objectives

- Influence customer buying decisions.
- Highlight competitive advantages.
- Increase brand preference.
- Encourage immediate purchase.

Example: Pepsi advertisements encouraging customers to choose Pepsi over other soft drinks.

5. Reminder Advertising

Meaning

Reminder advertising reminds existing customers about products they already know and encourages repeat purchases.

Objectives

- Maintain customer loyalty.
- Increase repeat purchases.
- Keep the brand fresh in customers' minds.
- Maintain market presence.

Example: Coca-Cola advertisements reminding customers to enjoy the drink during festivals and summer.

Importance of Different Types of Advertising

- Creates awareness about products and services.
 - Increases sales and profits.
 - Builds a strong brand image.
 - Educates customers.
 - Maintains customer loyalty.
 - Helps businesses compete effectively.
-

Conclusion

Different types of advertising serve different business purposes. Product advertising promotes products, institutional advertising builds company reputation, informative advertising educates customers, persuasive advertising influences buying decisions, and reminder advertising maintains customer loyalty. Together, they help businesses achieve successful marketing objectives.

3. Explain Visualization of Advertising Layout.

Introduction

Visualization of an advertising layout is the process of planning and designing an advertisement before its final production. It involves arranging different elements such as headlines, images, text, colours, logos, and slogans in an attractive and organized manner. A good layout helps capture customer attention and communicate the message effectively.

Meaning of Visualization of Advertising Layout

Visualization is the preparation of a rough design or blueprint of an advertisement. It helps advertisers decide how different elements should be placed to make the advertisement attractive, clear, and effective.

Elements of Advertising Layout

1. Headline

The headline is the first part that attracts customer attention. It should be short, attractive, and meaningful.

Example: "Flat 50% Off – Shop Today!"

2. Images or Illustrations

Pictures make advertisements more attractive and help customers understand the product quickly.

3. Body Text

Body text provides detailed information about the product, including features, benefits, price, and offers.

4. Colours

Appropriate colours improve the visual appeal of the advertisement and create emotional impact.

5. Logo

The company logo helps customers identify the brand and improves brand recognition.

6. Slogan or Tagline

A slogan is a short and memorable statement that represents the brand.

Example: Nike – "Just Do It."

Importance of Visualization of Advertising Layout

1. Attracts Customer Attention

A well-designed layout immediately captures customer interest.

2. Improves Communication

A proper arrangement of text and visuals makes the advertisement easy to understand.

3. Creates Brand Identity

Consistent use of logos, colours, and slogans strengthens brand recognition.

4. Increases Advertising Effectiveness

An attractive layout improves customer engagement and increases the chances of purchase.

5. Saves Time and Cost

Planning the advertisement before final production reduces mistakes and avoids unnecessary expenses.

Principles of a Good Advertising Layout (Extra Point)

- Simplicity
 - Balance
 - Attractive Design
 - Proper Colour Combination
 - Readability
 - Clear Message
-

Conclusion

Visualization of an advertising layout is an important step in designing an effective advertisement. Proper planning of headlines, images, text, colours, logos, and slogans makes advertisements attractive, easy to understand, and more successful in communicating the promotional message.

UNIT–2 SHORT ANSWERS

1. Define the Role of Advertising.

Answer:

The role of advertising is to inform, persuade, and remind customers about products and services. It creates product awareness, builds brand image, increases sales, and helps businesses compete effectively in the market.

2. Explain the Types of Advertising.

Answer:

The main types of advertising are Product Advertising, Institutional Advertising, Informative Advertising, Persuasive Advertising, and Reminder Advertising. Each type is used to achieve different marketing objectives, such as creating awareness, promoting sales, and building brand loyalty.

3. Explain Visualization of Advertising Layout.

Answer:

Visualization of an advertising layout is the planning and arrangement of advertisement elements such as headlines, images, text, colours, logo, and slogan before preparing the final advertisement. It helps make the advertisement attractive, organized, and easy to understand.